PREFATORY NOTE.

The completion of the First Volume of the Second Series of "Miscellanea Genealogica et Heraldica" affords the Editor a most welcome opportunity of renewing to many old Contributors his expression of thanks for their continued support.

To those new Correspondents whose communications appear in this Volume he is not less indebted. They have already earned his gratitude, but he is convinced that that sentiment is fated to be stimulated by their "favours to come."

Promise is one thing, performance is another. The Editor feels some little confidence that the expectations he held out in commencing a Second Series at an increased price have been borne out by the results, especially as regards the matter of Illustration. And here it is only fair to give due praise to the admirable manner in which Mr. W. Griggs has carried out the coloured photographic facsimiles of Grants of Arms and other Heraldic Documents which adorn the present Volume.

Time flies! It is now very nearly twenty years ago that the First Quarterly Number of this Publication was issued in July 1866; and the Editor must own to feelings of self-congratulation, not unmixed with some surprise, at the continued success of such a periodical.

The encouragement which he has throughout received has been the best justification for undertaking the work, as it will be the best incentive to further activity.

March, 1886.

Three daughters. (Sic in my pedigree, but whence obtained I know not.—H. H. G.)

* Martha Gibbes speaks in her will, pr. in Bristol 1714, of "her sister Gibbes in the Castle, and her nephews and nieces, children of the said sister, viz., John, Henry Long [sic, but he made his own will as plain Henry Gibbes], Harington. and five daughters." (There were seven.) She only names Dionis and Hellena. Robert Long of Staunton Prior, co. Somerset, mentions his cousin Henry Long Gibbes in his will, dated 28 Jan. 1696, pr. P.C.C. March 1698.

† In a pedigree of mine he is called Rev. Henry Tayler. It is Thomas in the wills, and both Tayl*o*r and Tayl*er*.—H. H. G.

‡ Mary Walter, aunt of Jane and sister of Martha Gibbes, only says in her will, 1678, "my kinsman Mr. Taylor."

§ I have not any proof that Anne married Innys. Harington says "my brother Jeremy Innys," and Dionis "my brother-in-law Jeremy Innys," and Hannah, sixteen years later, "Mr. Jeremy Innys and his wife." and Harington mentions "my niece Elizabeth Innys," but all this is compatible with his being a son of John Gibbes's wife by a former husband.—H. H. G.

‖ Dionis Gibbes mentions her nieces Elizabeth and Dionis, daughters of John Gibbes, and "Dionis [perhaps this one] wife of Joseph Oliver of Bristol," and Elizabeth Warren.

¶ Harington Gibbes mentions his "brother and sister Knight," and makes no (other) mention of Hellena, whom Dionis mentions seventeen years later as Helena Hart.

 C. 1726, Harington Gibbes had licence (Faculty Office) to marry Lucy Webbe. There must have been a slip 'twixt cup and lip, as an inscription on his tomb at Kelston says, "The pious tenant of this Stone To marryd pleasure lived unknown."

* Communicated by the Rev. F. J. POYNTON.

† With what degree of correctness he styled himself Rector of Malmesbury in 1623 I know not. The Incumbent is now a Vicar. The Parish Register of Bitton, co. Gloucester, contains two entries in Jan. 1606, being burials of Susan and Jane Fido, both of them daughters of Thomas Fido, Clerk. This Thomas Fido may be the same man. Edmund Fido was Rector of Cold Ashton, near Marshfield, 1666.

‡ This Ann, or her cousin Ann, dau. of William Thorner, married Roger Long of Potterne as his second wife.

* The name of Conder is most probably derived from a small river bearing that title in the north of Lancashire.

† A deed dated 1580 states that Rowland Hardye of Mansergh shall hold certain lands called Tyrrie Bank of Marmaduke Redmayne of Thornton, co. York, by the ancient custom of Tenant right.

‡ The Parish Register at Kirkby Lonsdale commences in 1538, and is, with the exception of a break of five years, circa 1550 or 1560, fairly perfect. It was transcribed in 1603, when the name of Christopher Conder appears as Churchwarden. It is probable that Edward Conder was born circa 1556 or 1557, during a gap in the Register, as his baptism is not recorded.

§ Indenture between John Hardye of Terry Bank and Edward Conder of Mansergh, dated 24 Feb. 1608, by which Edward Conder purchases Terry Bank and land, etc., from the said John Hardye.

‖ A deed, dated 12 Nov. 1617, confirming to Alice, widow of the late Edward Conder, the admission of her son Edward Conder, "a minor," to the tenant right of Terry Bank, signed by William Wallingford, Lord of the Manor. The admission deeds of each successive possessor are preserved in the family.

The above-mentioned George Evelyn (decd) was one of the Six Clerks in Chancery. He died at West Dean, Wilts, about Jany 20, 1635-6, intestate. He left two sons, Arthur the youngest, was an officer in Cromwell's army, and in 1650 held the appointment of Governor of Wallingford Castle. The Castle was ordered to be demolished in 1652 under the supervision of Major Arthur Evelyn. Major Evelyn married May 17, 1638, Ann Harrington, sister to Lady Acton (or Ashton), and James Harrington. The two sisters sent in a petition Feby 14, 1662, stating that their brother James "has been 11 weeks prisoner in the Tower," and they ask "for permission to themselves and his tenants to have access to him, as the tenants refuse to pay his rent unless they see him sign acquittances. The fortunes of the petitioners since the death of their mother Lady Harrington depending chiefly on him they are in danger of ruin. A licence was given to Mrs Evelyn, Lady Acton (or Ashton), and a physician to see Mr Harrington in the Tower, and for the tenants to see him sign acquittances."

Geo. Evelyn was succeeded in the Chancery Clerkship by Robert, son of Sir Julius Cæsar. The Funeral Sermon was preached at West Dean by Doctor Mathew Nicholas, the Incumbent of Winterbourne, who wrote that "he would strain to do him honour in a Funeral Sermon. He has memorable things to speak of his liberality to the church and poor." Dr Nicholas was the son of John Nicholas of Wilts, and brother to Edward Nicholas, the Secretary of Charles 1st. He wrote to his brother Edward, March 1621, that he "has at length ventured on a cure of souls, and has been inducted by Mr Sprat and Mr Evelyn in the living of Winterbourne." From St Edmund's Hall, Oxford, he wrote May 14, 1621, "that he hopes Mr Evelyn (George) will allow him his diet for teaching his younger son (Arthur). He has taken lodgings at Dean at £4 a year, which is too much for them." Later on, July 17, he says "that he is sorry old Evelyn hastens to Dean, as he is not ready to entertain him. He cannot study there so well as at Oxford, and has only sermons that will last four or six weeks."

In 1636, a petition was presented of "Arthur Evelyn, son of George Evelyn, decd, late one of the 6 clerks in Chancery to the King. Petitioner's father, for £2500 paid to his Majesty, obtained a grant of the reversion of the said office to petitioner after the death of his father and Mr Cæsar. Petitioner's father being confident that petitioner would enjoy the said office, charged him with the payment of £2000 towards discharging his debts, for which sum petitioner has entered into a bond to his oldest brother, administrator to his father. The contract growing a more advantageous bargain to petitioner than he expected by reason of the sudden death of Mr Cæsar, he has tendered to his Majesty by Sir Dudley Diggs, Master of the Rolls, £3000 which he desires the King to accept and prays him to declare his assent (as he lately did in Mr Burgh's case) to the Lord Keeper and the Master of the Rolls, for petitioner's admittance to the said office."

SOME NOTES AND EXPLANATIONS RELATING TO THE FOREGOING PEDIGREE.

[1] FIRST FIVE DESCENTS.—For the first five descents of the above pedigree see Harl. MS. liv. I, folio 202. They are also set forth in a MS. Roll of the Family of Lee, in the possession of the Family of Thornton of Brockhall, co. Northampton, and in another in my own possession, dated 1629, signed and attested by Sir Henry St. George.

[2] The name of "John at Lee" or "John de La Lee" is found in the List of Gentry of the county of Oxford in the 12th year of Henry VI., i.e. 1434, wherein he is said to have been Ranger of the Forest of Bernewood. The same name occurs in the Court Roll of the Manor of Quarrendon, co. Bucks, for the same year. "La Lees," now called "Lilies," is a mansion-house sometime inhabited by Lord Nugent, now by Mr. Henry Cazenove.

[3] Burston, Birdsthorne, Bursthorne, or Birdstone, a hamlet and reputed manor in Aston Abbots, co. Bucks. After the Conquest it was in the hands of Walter Giffard and Milo Crispin. Burston Manor House was one of the seats of the Lees, first as tenants, subsequently as holders of the manor. John Leland in his 'Itinerary' mentions "Mr Leigh's goodly house with orchards & a park." This, which was of timber work and pargetting, was pulled down in the reign of Queen Elizabeth. Here both Sir Robert Lee and his son Sir Anthony Lee resided. It was rebuilt by Sir Henry Lee, K.G., but subsequently altered and partly taken down. Its remains are now used as a farm-house.

[4] SIR ANTHONY LEE'S TOMB, SOMETIME IN QUARRENDON CHAPEL.—"It is," as a writer in the 'Gentleman's Magazine' for 1817 and 1818 states, "a large altar-tomb with pillars of Sussex marble (which appear to have been broken, and repaired with white stone) supporting a canopy or entablature, under which are recumbent figures as large as life of an armed knight and his lady. The feet towards the altar, the hands pressed together in a devotional attitude, but the fingers and part of the feet broken off. These figures, as well as the rest of the tomb, are of alabaster and well sculptured, but the features, as well as the more delicate work of the ornaments, defaced. On a blue stone, at the back of the recess in which the effigies repose, on rolls of well-imitated mats" was the following inscription (preserved, let me add, with more or less accuracy by Nicholas Charles, Lancaster Herald, in Lansdowne MSS. No. 874):

> "Sir Anthony Lee, Knight of worthy name,
> Syre to Sr Henry Lee of noble fame,
> Sonne to Sr Robert Lee here tombed lies
> Whereas his fame and memory never dies;
> Great in ye fountain whence himself did runne
> But greater in the greatnesse of his sonne.
> His body's here, his soule in heaven doth rest.
> What scornde the earth cannot with earth be prest."

"On each side are trophies and fretwork ornaments richly carved. The front of the tomb is divided into compartments, with tablets corresponding with those on the opposite monument of Sir Henry, and inscribed with about an equal number of lines, probably in metre, but so much injured, that the word 'Margery' and some few letters here and there are all that can be read. Under the canopy, but above the inscription, is a stone shield with the paternal coat of Lee, in a field Argent, a Bar and three Cresents Sable; impaled with another coat, probably that of the Wyats. And above the monument the same Arms repeated as on Sir Henry Lee's Coat, but without the Garter."

[5] According to the Lansdowne MSS. No. 874, a MS. account by Nicholas Charles, the following Coats of Arms tricked by him existed in Quarrendon Chapel, A.D. 1611:

Lee (undifferenced).
Sir Anthony Lee.
Sir Henry Lee, K.G.
Cooke impaling Saunders.
Cope of Banbury, co. Oxon, impaling Saunders.
Saunders impaling Spencer.
Vavasour of co. York on a lozenge with crest above.
Greenaway of Leckhampstead, co. Bucks.
Ingoldsby of Dinton, co. Bucks.
Lee impaling Wyatt of co. Kent.
Cheyne impaling Lee.
Reade of Norfolk impaling Lee.
Lee with eight quarterings.
Symonds of Norfolk impaling Lee.
Lord Russell of Chenies.
Lord Paget of Beaudesert.
Clerke of Thame, Oxon, impaling Lee.
Poynings.
Wyatt of Allington Castle, co. Kent.
Sir Francis Knollys, and several others not identified.

THE ASSIGNMENT OF ARMS TO SHAKESPERE AND ARDEN.

The particular interest attaching to anything connected with the history of Shakespere arises, first, from his name heading, as it were, the foremost leaf of the Book of Fame; and next, to the singular fact that so very few of his relics have descended to us; which one would rather attribute to demands for their very general dissemination in the seventeenth century, and consequent loss of identity, than to the suggestion that his countrymen were tardy in realising his unapproached genius. The documents, of which facsimiles are here given, are dispersed in volumes of various evidences in the Heralds' College, and relate, in four instances, to the grant of arms made to Shakespere's father in 1596, and to the allowance of arms for his wife (Arden) three years later.

The coloured facsimile exhibits the precaution of Sir Wm. Dethick, when assigning a sable bend on a gold field, in having before him such similar coats as already existed, to guard against infringing the recorded rights of others; the other smaller facsimile is a rough trick of the arms as finally arranged, while the first and second drafts of the grant shew the corrections and additions made, in all probability, at the instance and in the presence of Shakespere himself. But I think the document of 1599 still more interesting, for we have proof not only of the desire to perpetuate gentle descent through the mother, but Camden (who had entered the College after the grant of 1596) was a party to it as "Clarenceux."

The bearing of arms in the sixteenth century was, I need not say, more limited and more restricted as to the class and status of grantees than at later periods, and one gets an inkling of the POET'S ambition to raise his family in the social scale, as well as an indication of the position of his non-professional associates, in tracking him to the Heralds' College, and seeing all the pains he took to aggrandise himself with an inherited, and his descendants with a quarterly coat. For Shakespere was assuredly his father's agent in these matters; and it seems to give me a new love for the old College to picture his being here, closeted with Dethick and Camden. We seem to touch his hand when holding the very documents he must have held, and in turning over the leaves of the identical MSS. which were doubtless before him, as they are now before me, in his endeavour to "tack on" his mother to a recorded line of Arden. This is suggested by the draft of 1599. In the sketch the fess coat of Arden was first impaled with John Shakespere's, but very properly struck out, for the Ardens to which it belonged were then flourishing, and the connection with them of John Shakespere's wife, though asserted, could not be proved.

This question of assigning what is called the "old coat" of Arden in impalement, has been often discussed, viz., by Mr. Halliwell, Mr. Gough Nichols, Mr. G. R. French, and others; but I am inclined to think that Dethick and Camden were perfectly justified in allowing it as they did, charging the chief with a martlet. The claim to the fess coat was soon negatived, and if the mother of Shakespere was entitled to any arms (for although there is the strongest circumstantial evidence of her descent, it has not, as far as I know, ever been satisfactorily established), it could only have been to the so-called "old coat"; and this was eventually assigned, with the saving clause of differencing the chief—an addition which modern representations of the impaled arms omits in error.

STEPHEN TUCKER, Somerset Herald.

Will witnessed by "Ed. Vere (Earl of Oxford), Will' Scott, Thomas Johnes, Richard Nashe, Richard Lee, Richard Gosnold."

TOMB, NOW DESTROYED, OF SIR HENRY LEE, K.G., AT QUARRENDON.—"The most perfect of the three monuments consists of a magnificent sarcophagus, on which is the recumbent effigy of a personage in a coat of mail, and over it the mantle and collar of the Order of the Garter: the whole of alabaster, painted and gilded in a very superb style. The head is towards the altar, resting on a helmet of beautifully polished alabaster; the left arm broken off at the elbow, as also part of the right hand, which, from the position of the arm, seems to have grasped (perhaps) a sword, and the point of the beard and nose of the statue are gone. The mantle is thrown back to display the armour; and the collar, as well as the garter, are delicately finished. The azure of the latter, and the gold letters upon it, are still quite fresh; but the colour of the mantle is much faded. The feet of the statue have been broken off, and a beautiful cornice which ornamented the canopy or awning over the figure lies in the fragments around. This canopy, which is exteriourly carved and painted to resemble small tiles of Delft, is, on the outside, divided into numerous compartments, ornamented with flowers richly gilt, and rests upon two pilasters with Corinthian capitals, next the wall, and in front upon Termini, of alabaster, highly finished, with the figures of warriors having on rich crested helmets. On slips of jasper, inserted along the front of the pediment, is the motto Fide et Constantia: and on a dark stone behind the effigy, the following inscription:

Fide et Constantia	Vixit Deo, Patriæ et Amicis, annos —.
Fide et Constantia	Christo sp'vm, carnem sepulcro commendavi.
Fide et Constantia	Scio, credo, expecto mortuorum resurrectionem.

"The rendering of this inscription is as follows: 'By faith and constancy he lived to God, to his Country and friends — years. By faith and constancy I have commended my flesh, buried in Christ, to the tomb. By faith and constancy I know, I believe in, I wait for the resurrection of the dead.' On each side are trophies in well executed relief, and on the body of the sarcophagus, below, on two tablets, these lines:

'If Fortune's stoore or Nature's wealth commende,
They both unto his Virtue praise did lende.
The warres abroade with honour he did passe,
In courtly justs his Soveraigne's knight he was.
Six princes he did serve, and in the fright
And change of state, still kept himself upright.
With Faith untought, spottless and deere his fame,
So pure that envy could not wrong the same:
All but his virtue now (so vaine is breath)
Tourn'd dust lye here in the cold armes of Death.
Thus Fortune's gifts and yearthly favours flye
When Virtue conquers Death and Destinie.'

"Above the monument, against the north wall, is the shield of arms, enclosed by a garter and motto. Dexter side: quarterly. In the first quarter, Argent, a bar and three cresents Sable; 2nd quarter, Gules, a lion rampant Or; 3rd quarter, Gules, two wolves (or foxes) passant Or; 4th quarter, Argent, a bar and unicorns head Sable. Sinister side: in the first and fourth quarter, Argent, a bar and three roses Sable; 2nd quarter, in a field, Azure, powdered with eight stars Or, an escutcheon of pretence Ermine; 3rd quarter, within a border Azure, with ten stars Or, a lion rampant Azure, in a field Argent."

As this is the third and last of the three monuments so carefully described above, and which unhappily are now entirely destroyed, it may be well to state here, that in the church of the parish of Spellsbury, in which the mansion of Ditchley now is, there is a monument to the Sir Henry Lee, Knight, who was the successor and executor to Sir Henry Lee, K.G., and was one of the first Baronets created, which monument was erected upon his decease in 1631, and answers in all respects to the character and style of those that have perished; so that though those originals are no longer preserved and to be seen, yet this their model or copy will help to give us an idea of what the former were.

To return, however, to Quarendon Chapel. Besides the monument erected in honour of Sir Henry Lee, K.G., there also existed in the wall of the chancel "a tablet within a frame of alabaster, bearing the date 1611, and the letters, 'Sustine do pergo,' with the following inscription in capital letters:

"'Sir Henry Lee, knight of the most noble Order of the Garter, sonne of Sir Anthony Lee, and Dame Margaret, his wife, daughter to Sir Henry Wiat, that faithful and constant servant and councellor to the two Kings of famous memory, Henries the VII. and VIII. Hee owed his birth and childhood to Kent, and his highly honourable uncle Sir Thomas Wiat, at Alington Castle; his youth to the Courte and King Henry the VIII. to whose service he was sworne at xiiii yeares olde: his prime of manhood, after the calme of that best prince Edward the Sixt, to the warrs of Scotland in Queen Maries days, till called home by her whose soddeine death gave beginninge to the glorious reigne of Queen Elizabeth. He gave himself to voyage and travaile into the flourishing States of France, Italy, and Germany, when soon putting on all those abillities that became the backe of honour, especially skill and proof in armes, he lived in grace and gracing the Courtes of the most renowned Princes of that warlike age, returned home charged with the reputation of a well formed travellour, and adorned with those flowers of knighthood, courtesy, bounty, valour, which quickly gave forth their fruite as well in the fielde to the advantage (at once) of the two divided parties of this happily united State, and to both those Princes his Sovereignes successively in that expedition into Scotland in the year 1573; when in goodly equipage he repayred to the siege of Edinburgh, then quartering before the Castle, and commanding one of the batteries, he shared largely in the honor of ravishing that maiden forte; as also in Courte, when he shone in all those fayer partes w^ch^ became his profession and vowes, honouring his highly gracious M'tris with reysing those later Olympiads of her Courte justs and tournaments (thereby trying and treyninge the courtier in those exercises of armes that keepe the person bright and steeled to hardinesse, that by soft case rusts and weares) wherein still himself lead and triumphed carying away great spoyles of grace from the Soveraigne, and renown from the worlde, for the fairest men at armes and complete courtier of his times, till singled out by the choice hand of his Royall M'tris, for meed of his worth (after the Lieutenancy of the Royall Manour of Woodstocke, and the office of the Royall Armory) he was called up an Assessour on the Bench of Honour among Princes and Peers, receivinge at her Majesties hands the noblest order of Garter, whilest the worme of time gnawinge the roote of this plant, yelding to the burden, age, and the industrye of an active youth imposed on him, full of the glorie of the Court he abated of his sence to pay his better part, resigned his dignity of her Maj'ties Knighte to the adventurous Compt George Earle of Cumberlande, changing pleasure for ease, for tranquility honour, makinge rest his sollace, and contemplation his employment, so as absenting from the world, present with himself, he chose to loose the fruit of publique use and action for that of devotion and piety, in which time (besides the building of four goodly mansions) he revived the ruines of this Chappell, added these monuments to the honour of his blood and frends, raised the foundation of the adjoining hospitall, and lastly, as full of years as of honour, having served five succeeding Princes, and kept himself reight and steady in many dangerous shockes, and three utter turnes of state, with a body bent to earth, and a mind erected to Heaven, aged 80, knighted 60 years, he met his long attended ende, and now rests with his Redeemer, leavinge much patrimony with his name, honour with the world, and plentifull teares with his friends. Of which sacrifice he offers his part, that, beinge a sharer in his blood as well as in many of his honourable favors, and an honourer of his virtues, thus narrowly registreth his spread worth to ensuinge times. "WILLIAM SCOTT.'"

EXECUTION OF THOMAS LEE, 12 FEB. 1600.

"The preceeding evening Thomas Lee, a soldier of fortune, had offered his services to Sir Robert Cecil ; four days later he was heard to say that if the friends of Essex meant to save him from the block they should petition for his pardon in a body, and refuse to depart till it had been granted. Sir Robert Cross communicated this remark to the Secretary : orders were issued for the apprehension of Lee, and the pursuivants discovered him the same evening in the crowd at the door of the Presence Chamber, during the Queen's supper. In the morning he was arraigned on a charge of intending to murder the Sovereign; and the next day suffered the death of a traitor. No man who will read the report of his trial can entertain a doubt of his innocence. But his conviction produced this effect—it persuaded the Queen that her safety was incompatible with the life of Essex." HEDLEY AND SHAFTO.—Could any one kindly give me any information as to where I could find a pedigree, printed or private, of either of these two families? John Hedley of Newcastle-on-Tyne married (about the middle of the eighteenth century) a Dorothy Shafto (oe or ow); his father is stated to be either John or William Hedley. He, I fancy, must be the ancestor also of the Hedley-Dent family. The arms of John Hedley on an old seal are given as "Gu., a chev. betw. 3 falcons arg., beaked and legged or." Dorothy Shafto's father is stated in an old MS. pedigree to be of Dure (or some such place—illegible in MS.), and married the widow (or daughter—also illegible) of Edward Byers. The arms of this Shafto family were "Gu., on a bend arg. 3 mullets az.," with the usual Shafto salamander in flames for crest.

Last night was buried at Spelsbury near Woodstock the right honorable Charlot Countess Dowager of Litchfield & natural daughter of King Charles the II[d] by Barbara then Countess of Castlemaine, afterwards Dutchess of Cleveland. The Will of Charlotte, Countess of Litchfield, dated 1 Feb. 1717-18, was proved 5 March 1717-18. She leaves her three younger sons £100 each; £2000 to Lady Barbara Lee if she married with the consent and approbation of her brother; and £200 to "M[r] Boniventer Giffard" [a R.C. bishop]. It is witnessed by Walter Baynes.

[21] LANGDON OF CORNWALL.—"Sir William Godolphin, Knt., of Cornwall, married Blanche, daughter of John Langdon, whose daughter, Grace Godolphin, married Sir John Sydenham." Visitation of Cornwall, pedigree attested by Francis Godolphin, 1620.

"Nicholas Maynard (son and heir of Constantine Maynard), living 1620, married as his second wife Eliza, daughter of Walter Langdon of Keverell." Visitation of Cornwall, pedigree attested by Nicholas Maynard and Henry Maynard, 1620.

[22] WILL OF COLONEL RICHARD LEE OF VIRGINIA.—"I, Colonel Richard Lee of Virginia, and lately of Strafford-Langton in the county of Essex, Esq., being bound out upon a voyage to Virginia aforesaid, and not knowing how it may please God to dispose me in so long a voyage,—First, I give and bequeath my soul to that good and gracious God that gave it me, and to my blessed Redeemer, Jesus Christ, assuredly trusting in and by his meritorious death and passion to receive salvation, and my body to be disposed of, whether by sea or land, according to the opportunity of the place, not doubting but at the last day both body and soul shall be united and glorified. Also my will and earnest desire is, that my good friends (Thomas Griffin and John Locky, merchants in England) will, with all convenient speed, cause my wife and children —all except Francis, if he be pleased—to be transported to Virginia, and to provide all necessary for the voyage .... To my wife, during her life, I give the plantation (Stratford) whereon I now reside, ten English servants, five negroes, three men and two women, twenty sows, and corn proportionable to the servants. The said negroes I give to her during her widowhood, and no longer, and then presently to return to those of the five youngest children: also the plantation Mock-Neck. Item,—my will and my earnest desire is, that my household stuff at Stratford be divided into three parts, two of which I give to my son John, and bind him to give to every one of his brothers a bed, and the other third I give to my wife, Anna Lee. Item,—I give all my plate to my three eldest sons or the survivor or survivors of them, each to have his part delivered to him when he comes to the age of eighteen years. Item,—I give to my son John and his heirs forever, when he comes to the age of eighteen years, all my land and plantation at Matholick, all the stock of cattle and hogs thereupon, also ten negroes; viz., five men and five women, and ten English servants for their times," etc. He likewise bequeaths his plantation Paradise, and the servants there, &c., to Richard. The Papermakers'-Neck and War-Captain's-Neck, with five negroes and ten English servants, to Francis. To his five younger children, William, Hancock, Betsy, Ann, and Charles, the testator bequeaths a plantation including Bishop's-Neck, four thousand acres of land on the Potomac, and the remainder of two plantations, after the death of his wife, together with the residue of his estate, real and personal. To his eldest son, John, he bequeaths "three islands lying in the Bay of Chesapeake, the great bed that I brought over the last year in the 'The Duke of York,' and the furniture thereto belonging." To William he bequeaths his lands on the Maryland side: "also my will is, that goods sufficient be set apart for the maintenance of the gangs of each plantation for the space of two years, and all the rest of the goods to be sold to the best advantage, and the tobacco shipt home to Mr. Lockey and Mr. Griffith," etc. To Francis he gives his interest, "being one-eighth part, in the ship 'Elizabeth and Mary,' and the ship 'Susan.'" The will provides for the fund "for the better education of John and Richard equally, to assist, the one in his travel for the attainment of a reasonable perfection in the knowledge of physick; the other at the University or the Inns of Court, which he shall be most fit for."—'Genealogical History of the Lee Family of Virginia and Maryland,' etc., by E. C. Mead, pp. 53, 54; New York, 1868. [This book, I regret to point out, is exceedingly untrustworthy. The confusion as to dates, facts, and families is great, while the evidence concerning the parentage of the first settler in Virginia is altogether wanting in authenticity. —F. G. L.]

† This looks as if Susannah's mother was a lady of that parish. Unfortunately the early Registers of Whitcombe are not to be found, otherwise the family name of Susannah's mother might possibly have been added to the pedigree. In the North Aisle of the Abbey Church is fixed against a pillar a plate of copper framed with wood (seen 1883) engraved with these Arms [the Tinctures of which are indicated by Chasings]: Barry of six azure and or, a canton Ermine. Above these arms is engraved a winged figure, which must be intended, one would suppose, for the Angel of Death and not for a Crest.

The inscription runs: "In memory of M^r Charles Spencer, Mercer, who departed this life y^e 5^th of Feby. 1732 [sic for 1732-3] aged 58 years."

Data from Wills and other Sources.

Burke's 'Commoners,' vol. iv., p. 327, records Charles Spencer as married to Sarah, daughter of Francis Goddard, Esq., of Pirton 1667, by Elizabeth dau'r of Thomas Thorner [Thomas should be Richard, see pedigree].

Will^m White Esq. of Somerford Parva, in his Will dated 18^th Feby. 1719-20, calls Charles Spencer "Cousin" and leaves his personalty to Goddard son of this Charles in the event of the death of his own dau'r and only child Susannah before 21 or Marriage—Anthony Goddard of Pirton & John Harington are appointed Trustees & Guardians of the child.

John Harington Esq. of Kelston (he being the husband of Dorothy sister to the above W^m White) in his Will made 1724 named Charles Spencer of Malmesbury, Mercer, one of his Trustees.

* Inscription on a Flat Stone in the Church at Somerford Parva: "Here lyeth y^e body of Charles son of Charles & Sarah Spencer, Mercer in Malmesbury, who died Feby. 21 A.D. 1716[7] aged one year." The Register of Somerford records that he was buried Feb. 26, 1716-17.

GENEALOGICAL MEMORANDA RELATING TO THE FAMILY OF EVELYN.

NOTES FROM WEST DEAN, COS. HANTS AND WILTS.‡

The parish of West Dean is partly in Hampshire and partly in Wiltshire. A new parish church was built in 1866; but not far away, to the north of it, still stands a chantry or aisle of the old church, which has been retained as a mortuary chapel. Both buildings are in Wiltshire, although but a few hundred feet from the county boundary. The mansion-house of the Evelyns and Pierreponts, which stood close to the old church, has entirely disappeared. Traces, however, remain of the gardens and ornamental-grounds, notably a series of terraces and canals (now dry) in the adjoining meadow. The buildings also in close proximity, at the Church Farm, are the original offices and homestead, and the quaintly buttressed brick barn, some 160 feet long, is certainly suggestive of "better days."

The old churchyard possesses great beauty, being well kept and surrounded by a plantation of beech and other trees of large growth. To the north-east of the yard is a very perfect example of a small circular British camp.

The Parish Registers date from 1538, but are wholly deficient between 1598 and 1678, and from this latter year there are no records of Baptisms to 1698, nor of Marriages to 1702, nor are there any entries of Burials between 1701 and 1779.

Monuments in the Mortuary Chapel.

A fine monument of alabaster and marble against the north wall (towards the west end). [This was removed to its present position from the eastern part of the north wall of the destroyed chancel.]

* It would be a satisfaction, taking this seal into account with the arms shewn on copper-plate in the Abbey, to know to what Spencers this Wiltshire family belonged. Coleman's Deeds shew them residing at Norton 1710.

† The body of St. Paul's Church is long since demolished, but the tower (standing near the Abbey) is retained, and the bells in it are rung to announce services at the Abbey.

‡ Communicated by C. R. PINK, Esq. Special thanks are due to the Rev. G. S. MASTER, Rector of West Dean, for extracts from the Parish Registers of West Dean and Everley, and also for amplifying and revising the notes.

Under canopies appear the kneeling figures of a man and his wife with a prayer-desk between them. Below, on the face of the tomb, are carved the figures of eight daughters and three sons. All garments have been painted black. The pediment at the top of the monument is surmounted by a "cartouche" shield, bearing: Quarterly—1 and 4, Azure, a griffin passant or, a chief of the last, EVELYN; 2 and 3, Argent, two bars between seven martlets, 3, 3, and 1, vert, AYLARD.

(The form of the shield appears to have ruled the number of the martlets, which rightly should be nine.) The Crest has been broken off.

The inscription in the spandril between the canopies runs thus:

M. S.
JOH'IS EVELIN AR. PATRIS MERITO COLE'DI AC ELIZABETHÆ VXORIS SUÆ

A small alabaster monument against the south wall (towards the east end). [This was removed from the eastern part of the south wall of the old chancel.] The arms, on a "cartouche" shield, have been painted, but the tinctures are now obscure: Argent, two chevronels [azure], within a bordure engrailed gules, TIRELL: impaling, Per fesse EVELYN of West Dean and AYLARD.

(The number of the martlets in the Aylard coat, for a similar reason to that before given, appears as eight—3, 3, and 2.)

Below a very finely sculptured bust of a woman is the following inscription:

HIC JACET ELIZABETHA TIRELL FILIA GEORGII EVELYN

TATU ESSEXLÆ JUNIORIS QUI PROPTER PIETATEM ERGA

A small brass let into a Purbeck marble slab placed upright against south wall between the last monument and the east end of chapel. [This brass was removed from the floor of the sacrarium of the ancient chancel. It is figured in Kite's 'Monumental Brasses of Wilts,' p. 90.]

Below the engraved figure of a boy is the inscription:

A large marble monument against the north wall (next east end). [Its original position.]

On the top are the arms of Evelyn of West Dean, without impalement or quarterings, but surmounted by the Crest: a griffin passant, ducally gorged.

Under the canopy is a good bust of a man which is protected by folding iron doors. At the base of the monument is the following inscription:

P. M.
Of Sr John Evelyn of West Deane in ye County of Wilts.

Here lyes (what, Reader, thou shalt seek in vaine
In other tombs) a long liv'd hapy man,
Whose minde & Body kept soe just a pace
Thro' all ye various turnings of his Race,
That neither fail'd; till ye soul went away
His sence remain'd, and Death out run decay.
To him ye Great, To him ye meane repair'd,
The one's Adviser, and the other's Guard;
Peace by him dwelt, 'twas his delightful toyl
To make New Friends, & Foes to reconcile,
And what he taught he did himselfe commende,
Kinde to his Foes, & Faithfull to his Friends.
In Publick, and in Private Acts of Love
(Such as he, now a Saint exerts above)
His Life was spent: And when late Death
Sent welcom summons for his breath,
Zeal bore him upward, & his Active minde
Broke out in Prayer and left this dust behind
26th day of June in ye Yeare 1685, & of his Age 84.
This being erected by his beloved Daughter ye Honorable Mrs Elizabeth Pierrpont.

Occupying almost the entire east end of the chapel, and blocking its windows, is a marble monument designed in very questionable taste. At the top are the arms of Pierrpont: Semée of cinquefoils, a lion rampant, in the dexter chief a crescent charged with a label of three points for difference.

Under the canopy there is a large half-draped kneeling figure of a man with a small angel flying behind him. In front, issuing towards him, are some (metal) rays of light. These sculptures can be closed in by folding wooden doors, painted outside in imitation of green curtains. Inside, the left hand door has at the top a crest painted: a fox passant proper. In a similar position on the other door is a lion rampant (to sinister) sable. The doors are lined with copper, and below the paintings are gilded, and covered by a portion of the quaint, "conceited" epitaph, which, commencing at the top of the monument, is completed upon its base.

The whole inscription runs as follows:

[Upon the upper part of the monument.]

THE BAVES OF BATH AND OF BARROW COURT, TICKENHAM, CO. SOMERSET, ALLIED TO THE HARINGTONS, BOTH OF KELSTON AND CORSTON, IN THE SAME COUNTY.*

The founder of the Bave family in England was Dr. Samuel Bave, M.D. This eminent physician is spoken of, and his monumental inscription preserved (it would otherwise have been lost), in the pages of Dr. Guidott's treatise on 'The Hot Waters of Bath,' published in 1725. Again, several other inscriptions to members of Dr. Bave's family, which were extant in Antony Wood's time on the walls of Bath Abbey, were, as luck would have it, jotted down by that noted antiquary. Thus preserved they have recently been given to the public in 'Misc. Gen. et Heraldica' (N.S., Vol. IV., p. 69), 'Bath Abbey Inscriptions.' The writer of this memoir has availed himself, as of course, of these evidences on Bave family history. But he has also collected for the construction of a full pedigree much additional matter, drawn from wills, monuments, parish registers, and University records, and would highly value further information about the family, especially from marriage entries or bishops' licences.

As Dr. Guidott's treatise is not a work now readily accessible, the present writer thinks it well to give here a brief abstract of Guidott's notice of Dr. Bave. In it we are told he was the oldest physician practising in Bath when Dr. Guidott came there. Born at Colen in Germany in 1588, he had come to England through Paris [where he was a student in 1620]. His coming had been brought about through an introduction he had received to the English Ambassador at the French Court, Sir Thomas Edmonds, to whose son Bave became tutor. On reaching this country he proceeded to Christ Church, Oxford, and graduated from that House taking his Doctor's degree in 1628. His denization took place 25 Feb. 1629-30. He then selected the city of Gloucester as his first sphere of practice, and whilst resident there married Hester, daughter of a wealthy citizen and alderman named Robinson, who was by profession a "Councillor-at-Law." He quitted Gloucester in 1640 and adjourned to Bath, where he obtained a very wide connection, and pursued his professional career up to the time of his death, which event occurred on the 5th August A.D. 1668.

Notes on Dr. Samuel Bave at Oxford.†

On the 16th of December 1620 were matriculated from Christ Church: "Henricus Edmundes, Essexiæ, Fil. et Hæres D'ni Thomæ Edmundes, E secretis conciliis Regiæ Magistatis, an. nat. 15; Samuel Bavo, Germanus, Coloniensis, Generosus, an. nat. 30 ; and Robert son and heir of Sir Thomas Smith, aged 15." This collocation looks as if Bave came as tutor to young Edmundes. [So confirming Dr. Guidott on this point.]

Wood, in his 'Fasti' (ed. Bliss, i., 398), under the date of 1621, says of Bachelors of Physic: "Tho' not one admitted this year, yet three were admitted to practice, viz., Rich. Gardiner of Broadgate's Hall, Edw. Dawson of Lincoln Coll., and Samuel Bavey, a German of Ch. Church, which last was commonly called Dr. Bavey of Bath, where he was in great practice to the time of his death."

* It was noted by Antony Wood as occurring in Dr. Guidott's book, and for that reason not copied by himself.

† Kindly communicated to the writer by Dr. John Griffiths, Keeper of the Archives of that University.

Digitized by Google

Again (i., 442), under the date of 1628, speaking of the admission of Doctors of Physic, he says: "July 8. Sam. Bave or Bavo* of Ch. Ch. This person, who was son of Franc. Bave of Colen in Germany, became eminent for his practice, first in the city of Gloucester and afterwards in Bath, where dying in 1666 [sic] in error for 1668 [see inscription of his monument and his burial entry, also consider if he was 30 in 1620 he could not be 80 in 1666], aged 80, was buried in the great church there dedicated to S. Peter and S. Paul."

From these entries it may be inferred that Bave had taken the degree of B.M. in some foreign university, was received at Oxford as a B.M. and admitted to practice just as if he had been incorporated (although no record of his incorporation seems to exist), and in due course proceeded D.M. at Oxford.

The admission entry of Sam. Bave stands thus in the Dean's Entrance Book, Christ Church: "Dec. 16. Sam. Bavo, Germany, Colon, Gen., 30." That he was thirty years old at admission is considered a probable explanation of why he is styled "Gen." and not "Gen. Fil." as in ordinary cases.

His life was Short but Exemplary, and he died Endeavouring & praying for the good of his Parish & the Church, in the 39th year of his age the 20th Nov. 1716. And could not dye unlamented.

His most dear & Sorrowful Widow, Rose the 5th daughter of Sir William Leche,† thought herself obliged from the singular Piety she bore him, to erect this stone (Though not wanted) to perpetuate his beloved Memory.

Also the Body of Mrs Rose Bave, late Widow of Mr Francis Bave, Alderman of the city of Bath, died the 24th July 1734, aged 62 years.

And near this place also lies the Body of Hester Whitelock, Widow, 4th daughter of the said Sir William Leche. She died the 21 Sept. 1735, aged 71 years.

* The stone is broken at this place. The age was probably 65 or 66 originally.—F. J. P.

† This was Sir William Leche of "Squerryes," co. Kent, Knt., and of Shipley, co. Derby. At his death (1674) he left sons, by Jane his wife, Edward, John, William, and Philip (all minors, except Edward), and daughters Thomazin, Jane, Elizabeth, Hester, Rose, Dorothy, and Ann, all then unmarried; but we see by the above M.I. that Hester subsequently married .... Whitelock, and Rose was twice married, firstly to Rev. Benjamin Griffin, and secondly to Alderman Bave of Bath, and rests with her first husband.

The above inscriptions have been copied verbatim from the memorials themselves, but we find they were given by Gale in his somewhat scarce work, entitled 'The History and Antiquities of the Cathedral Church of Winchester,' published 1715. He also made the following references to Sir John Evelyn in "An Account of the Sale of Church-Lands belonging to this See [Winchester] during the Time of the Civil Wars, communicated by Thomas Rawlinson of the Middle Temple, Esq.;

Aug. 8, 1649. Several Lands in the Mannor of Sutton in Hampshire sold to Sir John Evelyn for £1717 7s. 6d.

In this connection it may be interesting to note that Arthur Evelin (who I presume was the third son of George Evelyn of West Dean) was a member of the Hampshire Committee appointed by the Parliament in 1644 for "levying upon papists and delinquents," etc. Also that the mansion at Worthy Park, near Winchester, was originally built by a member of the Evelyn Family.  The Baves of Bath (1884) are descended, as it would seem, from a certain John or Thomas Bave. The latter of whom was married at Bath Abbey 1725, but his name has not been found in any Bave will or other document as yet. John was baptized at St. Michael's Church as son of John. But John senior's place in this pedigree cannot be assigned because no baptismal entry has been discovered of any John Bave except this one, and John who died unmarried, aged 19, in 1657.

Benjamin Bave.‡ This is probably the child bur. at Bitton 1685-86.

1. Samuel Bave. Bapt. at Bitton 4 Aug. 1665. Named in Dr. Samuel Bave's will 1682. Died unmar. vitâ patris. Bur. at Bitton 4 Nov. 1707. Will at Gloucester P.C. Dated 22 Oct. 1707.

Ellinor. Named in her brother-in-law Samuel Bave's will 1707. First wife. = William Bave.§ Named in will of his grandmother 1682, but not in 1668, so probably born after 1670. Made his will 16 March 1733 as of the City of Bristol, gent. (P.C.C., Bk. Derby, fol. 99). Bur. at St. James's Church, Bristol, 21 April 1736. E

Sarah (? Ford). Named in her husband's will 1733, which also speaks of testator's brother-in-law Capt. William Ford. Second wife. = Hester Bave. Named in will of her grandmother Bave 1682, but not in 1668 by her grandfather. Named in brother Samuel's will 1707 as co-devisee with her sister Sarah of an estate in Wick et Abson, co. Glouc. = Jacob Little, glassmaker. F G

* He had probably received his fortune at time of marriage, viz., the property at Highfield, parish of Bitton, co. Glouc., purchased by his father from Vincent Gookin in 1646.

† No will or adm'on of these has been found in P.C.C., London, nor at Wells Probate Court.

‡ There is an entry at Bitton of "child" [nameless] of Mr. Samuel Bave bur. in March 1685-86. This may be Benjamin or an infant born after him in 1685-86.

§ He would seem to have been an Attorney, by his bequest of law box (or books) and Precedents to his son William. His name and that of his children is generally written Baufe in St. James's Register, Bristol. As to William Bave, junior, if any genealogist can give the writer further information he will confer a great favour upon him.

DENISON FAMILY.

Ann Denison married, 1765, Thomas Harrison of Leeds, and had a son Thomas, died unmarried, and a daughter Sarah, married a Mr. Taylor; she died about 1847, and left no issue. I believe the above Ann Denison was sister to Joseph Denison who went to London and acquired great wealth. Thomas Harrison and Ann Denison were one or both in the employment of my great-grandfather, William Read, who was a Merchant at Leeds. When they were married Mr. Read sent them to church in his carriage, and gave them a silver waiter, which Mrs. Taylor gave back to my father. It has their initials on, T. H. A.

Notes from Everley, co. Wilts.

The manor and mansion of this place were purchased by the Evelyns of West Dean from the Sadleirs about 1634-5. The house was burnt down and has been rebuilt.

The church was taken down in 1813, and a new one has been built upon another site.

The Parochial Registers contain the following Evelyn entries, viz.:

Baptisms.

1636 May 19 George ye sonne of Sir John Eveling, Knight, & of Elizabeth ye Ladye his wife.
1638 July 19 Marie the daughter of Sr John Evelyn, Knight, & of Elizabeth ye Ladie his wife.

† This is the Anthony Bave enquired for in 'Notes and Queries,' Nov. 12, 1853, p. 469, in these terms: "MSS. of Anthony Bave. I possess a volume of MS. sermons, treatises, and memoranda in the autograph of one Anthony Bave, who appears from the doctrines broached therein to have been a moderate puritan. What is known concerning him? It is a book I value much from the beauty of the writing and the vigorous style of the discourses.—R. C. WARDE, Kidderminster."

‡ This must be the Samuel Bave who signed the Abbey Vestry Minutes 1701.

§ Who were the parents of this John Bave? No further issue appears in the Registers of Walcot Parish. He may have been son of a John who should be born to Charles and Elizabeth after the death of their son John 1681.

REGISTERS OF BAVE AND HARINGTON FROM ST. JAMES'S CHURCH, BATH.

1623 John Harington son of M^r John xt'ed 8^th August.†

1682-3 Mary the dau'r of M^r Charles Bave and Elizabeth his wife, 2^d March.

[The search was continued to 1700, but no more entries of Bave were found.]

Marriage.

1723-4 Feb. 6 Edward Harington, M.B., and Esther Bave both of this city were married by licence.

* The discovery of his baptism at any church would be of great value in continuing the lines of Bave genealogy.

† This was a first-born John, son of John by the Hon. Lady Dionesse his wife, and his burial entry appears in the Abbey books 12 August, four days after his birth. The second John, son of same parents, was buried at Kelston 1624; then, in 1627, was born at Kelston third John, who not only survived but also married four times, and outlived three of his wives.

‡ He was baptized at the Abbey 13 February 1677-8. This christening must mean his admission to the Church, with appointment of godparents. He was probably baptized privately in the first instance; and his parents, not being aware of the entry made at the Abbey, had him again registered at St. James two years afterwards, when he was admitted. The parents appear to have gone to reside in St. James parish (in a newly built house) about 1680; hence the entries at the Abbey cease with the baptisms of Stafford Bave in December 1679, and commence at St. James 1680.

1714-15 Jan. 4 A child of Mr Baufe.‖
1736 April 21 Mr Willm Bave, eterney [attorney], in ye church.

* The blanks in this entry are able to be filled up from the transcripts at Gloucester with the christian name Samuel and the month August. The original entry in Bitton Registers is partly torn away, and immediately after it ensues an hiatus of about fifteen years. This portion of Bitton Registers was in fragments until all that remained were gathered together, mended, and caused to be bound up by the present Vicar's father, author of the 'History of Bitton,' and now Rector of Clyst St. George near Exeter—the Rev. H. T. Ellacombe.

† This Register dates from 1538, but being written on parchment and in a uniform hand for half a century or more is evidently a copy of the original. Throughout the seventeenth century it is poorly written and imperfect. Wm. Cole, J.P., presided at the contracts of matrimony during the Commonwealth registration.

‡ See her baptism, 1709, as Elizabeth-Anne-Mary.

§ The mothers' christian names are comparatively rare throughout these Registers. The burial entry of Ellinor, first wife of Wm. Bave, was not to be found, though careful search for it was made over the years 1710–32.

‖ This child must have been the William of 1709, and the son born in 1715 received his name; all the rest, except Ellinor and the William of 1709, are named in the will of the father, 1733.

It appears that the Dutry family is extinct in Holland, but that the Van Haeften family, who was allied to that of Dutry, have taken the name of the latter in addition to their own. It is still represented, 1884, by the following members:

1. B. Dutry van Haeften, 44ª Heerengracht, Hague, Holland.
2. Mr. J. Dutry van Haeften, formerly of Dordrecht, now Judge in North Africa.
3. D. Dutry van Haeften, Lieutenant de Cavalerie, Regt. at Deventer.
4. Mr. N. J. Dutry van Haeften, Burgomaster of Haaften, Holland.

Thanks are due to Monsieur Gonnet, Sub-Archivist at Haarlem, for the information concerning the Haarlem portion of the genealogy.

N.B.—The genealogy of Du Trieu, which family is undoubtedly the same as Dutry, is given in Goethal's 'Dictionaire Genealogique et Heraldique,' Bruxelles, 1852, in which is given a Jan Dutrieu, the son of Jan Du Trieu (who was born in 1592, and died at Hal 30 Aug. 1655) and Elisabeth de Ketelboetere, who died young; this early death is probably incorrect. He was the grandson of Bertrand Du Trieu who married Marguerite Delmotte. This family is still represented in Belgium, and is probably descended from the father who disinherited his son Jan for joining the Reformed Church.

Family of Schank (Shank or Schankis) of Castlerig, Kinghorn, co. Fife, N.B.

Communicated by E. G. W.

.... Schank of that ilk was of a very ancient family in Mid Lothian. (Nisbet.)

Murdoch Schank, who was an immediate son of Schank of that ilk, settled in Kinghorn in Fife, and got lands there in the reign of Robert Bruce, anno 1319. (Nisbet.) Tradition says that he found the body of King Alexander III. among the cliffs at Kinghorn 1286, and for this service he received a gift of the lands of Castlerig, near Kinghorn, from King Robert Bruce.

Robert Schankis. Lands of Robert Schankis are mentioned in a charter of confirmation dated 1360 as bounding certain lands in Kinghorn. = Isabel Irvine.

John Schank. = ... Kirkcaldie.

Possibly Robert Schank*is* may have been brother to this Henry. In the Register of the Great Seal of Scotland (A.D. 1455) is recorded grant of lands in county Ayr "quas Robert Schankis resignavit."

Henry Schank, infeft and seised in the year 1442. = Christian Melvil, dau. to the Laird of Raith.

Possibly Ninian Schank, in A.D. 1497 Provincial Prior in Scotland of the Dominicans, may have been brother to this Martin.

Possibly Robert Schankis may have been brother to this Martin. "Robert Schankis" is mentioned in the Register of the Great Seal of Scotland in a confirmation of Robert Peirsone—"burgensis de Kingorne"—as owner of bounding property anno 1478.

As also James Schankis, mentioned as owner of bounding tenements in Register of Great Seal of Scotland A.D. 1488-89.

Martin Schank, mar. 1482. = Alison, dau. to "Glasmount Boswell," i.e. Boswell of Glasmount, now known as Boswell of Balmuto. (Glasmount is near Kinghorn.)

Martin Schank, infeft anno 1520. = Bessie Lochore.

Henry Schank, mar. 1565. Henry Schank in 1608 was Elder of Kinghorn. = Bessie, dau. to John Balfour of Ballo.

Martin Shankis, witnesses several baptisms in Kinghorn 1577-78.

Henry Schank or Schankis. Hen. Schankis mar. A.D. 1609. In 1624 was allowed "to set up ane foir-face to the boukar of his dask to saue his wyfe and wynis fra being tred upo' by these y^{t} gois in to the yll." Kirk Treasurer. Henrie Shanks was Fellow of the Fishing Company (incorporated by charter) 1632. In 1643 Henry Shank was "Commissioner of burrowis for Kingorne." (Acts of Parliament of Scotland 1643.) Henry Shank was M.P. for the borough of Kinghorn 1643. (Foster's 'Members of Parliament, Scotland.') = Janet, dau. to Robert Cuninghame or Cuningham of Woodfield. (In 1678 Robert Cunningham of Woodfield was witness to the baptism of one of the children of Henry Shank, grandson of this lady.)

Martin Schank, mar. A.D. 1640. = Christian, dau. to John Reedie, shipmaster in Burntisland.

Henry Schank or Shanks, mar. 1669. Bailie of Kinghorn 1670. Appears in the Valuation Roll of Fife 1695 as owner of land in parish of Kinghorn, which land his son Martin inherited—heritor 1695. Was Kirk Treasurer. His house still standing. This house at Kinghorn presents two nicely carved but slightly defaced coats of arms over the principal door. They are in pale, with crest: the dexter are much the same coat and crest as are now borne by Schank; and the Balfour coat has a crescent in base, which may indicate descent from a second son. The initials and date of "16 H. S. B. B. 38" are upon the door. = Agnes, dau. to Alexander Balfour of Balgarvie.

Rev. Martin Schank, born 28 June 1670, bapt. at Kinghorn 10 July 1670. M.A. of St. Andrews 19 July 1690; studied at St. Leonard's College; Chaplain to the Lady of Ednam; licensed by Presbytery of Kelso 11 April 1693; called in July, and ordained 20 Sept. or 7 Oct. 1694; Minister of Auchtertool, co. Fife, 1694. Trans. to Newhills 4 Nov. 1696; adm. there 29 April 1697. Mar. April 1698. Was a widower 23 Oct. 1744 (see separate Register of Presbytery by Kincardine O'Neil). Trans. to Banchory-Ternan, co. Kincardine, 10 May; called there 9 April; admitted there 12 July 1699. Died 18 April 1747, aged about 75, in 53rd of his ministry. This Martin did dispose to his son and Mary Burnet his wife the lands called Easter Castleriggs, near the burgh of Kinghorn, and a tenement of land in the said burgh in pursuance of covenant in son's marriage settlement. = Margaret, dau. to Thomas Downie, merchant in Edinburgh, whose mother was a daughter of Dobie of Stoniehill. The name is spelt Dauney in the Register of Kincardine O'Neil. She died in her husband's lifetime, and before 23 Oct. 1744.

John Shanks, feuar of Third-part Townhouse Customs and Miln of Ceres, who died in 1755, aged 70, consequently born 1685, may have been another son.

Alexander Schank of Castlerig . . . . . possessed A.D. 1747 of the lands mentioned in the charter of confirmation of A.D. 1360 as belonging to Robert Schank. Mentioned as only son of his father in Register of Presbytery of Kincardine O'Neil. He bequeathed £100 to the poor of his father's parish of Banchory-Ternan. (Presb. Sess. and Test. Reg. (Aberd.), New St. Acc., xi.) Entered Arms of Schank in Lyon Office 23 June 1732. Representative of the family at the time Nisbet's 'Heraldry' was published, and it is presumed he supplied the information therein contained. This Alexander purchased the land called Wester Castleriggs and other lands in and near Kinghorn, and also lands called Gleniston. Executed deed of entail of Castlerig and Gleniston 13 March 1769, by which these properties passed to his kinsman Rev. Alexander Schank, then Minister of St. Cyrus. Monumental Inscriptions.

Within an enclosure near the N.E. corner of the kirkyard of Laurencekirk (Kincardineshire):

Sacred to the memory of Alexander Shank of Castlerig sometime Minister of the Gospel at S[t] Cyrus who died at Laurencekirk on the 5[th] of January 1814 aged 75 years.
Also Diana his wife daughter of the late
Robert Scott of Dunninald parish of Craig who died here on the 24[th] Feb[y] 1825 aged 84 years: And Jane their youngest daughter who died at her house in

Also in memory of Henry Shank of Castlerig and Gleniston esq. last surviving son of the above Alexander and Diana Shank who died January
4[th] 1860 aged 81.

At Banchory-Ternan (Kincardineshire), on a small round-headed stone with the date 1716, also D. M. S. in monogram. The initials T. S. and M. S. are upon another part of it, but the inscription is ill to decipher, though the letters ..... MARGT SC ..... and the date of 1716 are plain enough. If fully read, the inscription would probably be found to have some connection with Martin Schank, who (as shewn by an extract from the Presbytery Records of Kincardine O'Neil) became Minister of Banchory-Ternan in 1699, and died 18 April 1747.

Gravestone at Ceres "to the memory of IOHN SHANKS fewer of Thirdpart, Town House Customs, and Miln of Ceres, who died in 1755 aged 70."

On the east wall of the north transept of Dawlish Church, white marble tablet resting on a black one:

of his Majesty's Fleet
Who by his ability zeal & integrity
Raised himself to the highest Rank in his profession
And closed an Honorable life
After a service of sixty years
On the sixth of February 1823
Aged eighty three.*

* This "aged eighty three" is a mistake, as the Kinghorn Register in the Register House, Edinburgh, gives 26 April 1726 as the date of his baptism, which would make him aged 97.

VAVASOUR FAMILY.—I shall feel much obliged for any information respecting the parentage of Thomas Vavasour of Kippax, who died 1678. I think his mother's name was Frances and that she was sister of William Archer of West Cottingwith. He had a sister Margaret, who married first Watson; secondly to Thos. Nicholson of York. John Vavasour of Naburne, whose will was proved 1679, mentions his cousins Thomas Vavasour of Kippax and Elizabeth his wife, and their son John; also his cousins Margaret Nicholson, George Hemsworth, and Andrew Barker of Bubwith. He appoints Wm. Palmer, Esq., of Naburne to be his executor.

Boston Lodge, near Tadcaster. WM. CLARKE VINCENT.

ARMS.—On a hatchment (now destroyed) in the church at Seend, co. Wilts, in 1821 were the following arms: "1st, Argent, a chevron between three garbs sable, in chief a crescent for difference gules; 2nd, Sable, two bars ermine, in chief three crosses pattée or; 3rd, Argent, sun in full glory gules, in chief a crescent sable. On the left side of this shield is an escutcheon bearing on the sinister side the third quartering of the above with the impaling of the second, on the dexter side the first quartering impaling of the second."

This blazon is copied from a printed Collection of Wiltshire M.I. in 2 vols. fol. 1821; I believe only six copies were printed, one of which is in the College of Heralds, and another in the Library of the Devizes Museum, lately acquired at the sale of the Stourhead Library. Whose are these arms? A. S.

The Family of Denison (pp. 148 and 180).—I am indebted to Mr. G. E. Cokayne for the following taken from the Bunhill Fields Burying Ground Inscriptions:—William Butler, Esq., ob. 4 Feb. 1746, aged 37; Elizabeth, his wife, ob. 17 Jan. 1791, aged 78; Anne, their daughter, ob. 8 Dec. 1746, aged 6 years; Sarah, their 2nd daughter, ob. 8 March 1746, aged 2 years; Joseph Denison, Esq., ob. 12 Dec. 1806, aged 80 years; Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of the above-mentioned William Butler, Esq., ob. 27 Nov. 1771, aged 32. By the kindness of Mr. Reginald Ames, I learn that William Butler, Hat Maker in Tooley Street, London, married Elizabeth, daughter of John Davis, described as a Stick Merchant on London Bridge, who was one of the sons of Richard Davis of Ludlow, which Richard Davis was there buried 25 July 1710, and of whose parentage I gather Mr. Reginald Ames would be glad of information. Ann Denison, mentioned by Mr. Wm. Clarke Vincent at page 196, married, as he kindly informs me, on 2 Jan. 1765 at the Parish Church, Leeds (by licence), the witnesses being John Lister and Robert Harrison. Sarah, daughter of Thomas Harrison and Ann (Denison) his wife, married Joseph Taylor, and he died 8 April 1839, of Gledhow Mount, near Leeds. * Communicated by Capt. F. W. T. ATTREE, R.E.

† The family of More was of Morehouse in Wivelsfield from about A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1731, when the name died out in an heiress, Elyot, married to John Middleton, Esq. There is a short pedigree in Berry's 'Sussex Genealogies.'

‡ This family possessed the manor of Otehall in Wivelsfield from A.D. 1438 to A.D. 1537, after which it appears to have passed by the marriage of an heiress to the family of Godman. The Attrees were subsequently of Theobalds in this parish from about A.D. 1560 to A.D. 1823.

§ The manor of Lunces in Wivelsfield belonged to the family of At Dean al's Warren from A.D. 1478 to A.D. 1634, when it appears to have passed by the marriage of an heiress to John Rowe, grandson of the celebrated Sussex antiquary of the same name. It subsequently passed through the families of Farncombe, Tuffnell, and Cheesman, to William Bacon, Esq., the present lord of the manor.

‖ Appears from Le Neve's 'Fasti' and Newcourt's 'Repertorium' to have been Archdeacon of Lewes and Precentor of St. Paul's, and a man of some little note in his day.

¶ Correctly spelt; the name Attree signifying "at the ree" or river, and not "at the tree," as Lower and Bardsley both incorrectly give it.

She was born in London, probably at her father's residence, Lennox House Drury Lane, May 18th and baptized at St. Giles in the Fields May 30th 1681. Her father Sir John Brownlow, who had in 1679 succeeded to the large estates of his great uncle Sir John Brownlow of Belton, left at his death in 1697 considerable fortunes to each of his five daughters; Elizabeth the eldest had for her share £1200 per annum in land and £10,000 in money and was married at the age of 18 as his second wife to John Lord Burghley, eldest son of John Cecil 5th Earl of Exeter. Her marriage took place Sept. 19th 1699 at Belton, where her eldest son John was baptized Aug. 11th 1700. Shortly after the birth of her son she became Countess of Exeter on Lord Burghley's succeeding his father August 29th 1700 as the 6th Earl.

Her other children by him were four sons; Brownlow, who succeeded his brother as 8th Earl of Exeter (from whom the present Marquis of Exeter is descended), Henry, Francis, and Charles, who all died young and unmarried, and one daughter Elizabeth, who married William Aislabie of Studley York and died at the age of 26 in 1733.

Elizabeth, Countess of Exeter, who had survived both her husband (died Dec. 21 1721) and her eldest son John 7th Earl of Exeter (died April 9 1722), died Nov. 28th 1723 and was buried in St. Martin's Church Stamford. There are portraits preserved of her at Burghley by Sir Godfrey Kneller and at Belton by Wissing.

"I rasaved your letter and am glad to here you are in halth the Lord keepe you so if it be his good will: tis a wonderfull mercy to be preserved in such a sad time of mortalyty as this is: and sure that our dayes are lengthened out to you and I it is that wee should live to his praise: and labour to be more holy given up to do him service in oure severall relationes and for you that are younge O give him the strength of your yeares. Spend not your pretious time in vaneteys and carnall delightes of this worlde which will availe nothing in the day of the lordes wrath nor in a deying hower: but your worke is now, even while it is called today, to get asurance of the pardon of sinn and aceptance with god through Jesus Christe who is infinite in mercy, or else sure we had ben sent to our place long before this, and that wee are spared when so many are tumbeled into their graves that they are att a lose for graves to bury in, and many of god's dere children are taken away, never did ingland see such a sad day as this is: Seventy or Eyghtey thousand to fall in London in twelve wekes time, and how many more yet we know not, god has not onely lade the axe to the roote of the tree, but he hath cutt downe by thousands, and that wee are spared tis of his free grase and abundant mercy. I had well hoped that by this time you and you unckell might have cum to london with safety but now the lord onely knoweth wheither ever wee may see each outher agene thoug for the present I blesse the lord wee are all in very good helth and strength, yet the lord is quicke in his worke and we have deserved no more then those that are taken away. I do sum times wish you with me whereas yet god hath made it a zoar to me and mine, for I am still sanceabull of your soles want of foode, though for your bodey I am asured you wante nothing—I would have you spend sum time more than ordinary in secret prayer every weke for there was never more nede than now therefore tis our duteye to stande in the gape betwen the living and the ded if it may [be] possibull to turne away the lords wrath if not from the nation yet that wee may deliver our owne soles from goeing downe in to the pite: the lord give us both harts suted to the worke he hath for you to do which shall be the dayly prayers of your truly loveing mother

[1] The writer, the eldest and only surviving child of her parents, was baptized 2 Jan. 1624-5 at St. Benet's Gracechurch, London. The place of her marriage (recorded as above) is unknown. She was buried 8 Jan. 1683-4, with her husband and many of her children, at St. Bride's, London. Will dated 13 Sept. 1683; proved 17 Jan. 1683-4 in P.C.C.

[2] Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London. Apprenticed 23 June 1628. Free 4 July 1636. Died 7 and was buried 13 Nov. 1677 at St. Bride's, London, aged 67. Will dated 5 and proved 23 Nov. 1677 in P.C.C.

[3] He was of Hownell in Taynton, co. Gloucester, and died 1 Nov. 1654, aged 88 years 6 months and 18 days. By his wife Frances, dau. of James Colwell of Newent, co. Gloucester (whom he married in 1595, and who died 9 Dec. 1654, about a month after him, aged about 80), he had Thomas Ayleway, his son and heir, who married at Eastnor, co. Hereford, Judith, dau. of Richard Cocks, and who (with his said wife) was living Sept. 1665. The pedigree of Aylway is entered in the 'Visitation of Oxon, 1634,' of which what purports to be a copy is printed by the Harleian Society, vol. v.; while another pedigree of Ayleway, with arms and crest, extracts from the parish registers of Taynton, and other notes, is printed also by that Society, vol. xxi., p. 229, among the "Miscellaneous Pedigrees" given in the Appendix to the 'Visitation of Gloucestershire, 1623.'

[4] He was aged 32 at the Visitation of Dorset in 1623. He resided chiefly at Newington Butts, Surrey. By his first wife only he had issue. She was Susan, dau. of Robert Offley of Gracechurch Street, London, Merchant, by Anne, dau. of Sir Edward Osborne, sometime Lord Mayor of London, and was baptized 26 Oct. 1600 at St. Benet's Gracechurch, where (having died at Newington Butts) she was buried 29 Aug. 1661. His will, dated 14 Sept. 1668, was proved 21 Oct. following in P.C.C. Katharine, his second wife, survived him. Her will, as of Melton Mowbray, co. Leicester, widow, dated 24 May 1688, was proved 5 Jan. 1691-2 in P.C.C. The pedigree of this branch of the family of Hastings is recorded in the Visitation of Leicestershire (K. 2, fo. 25), 1681.

[5] He was second son of George, the fourth Earl of Huntingdon, and was himself a very celebrated character. He died 5 Oct. 1650, aged 99 years, and was buried at Horton, Dorset. See Hutchins's 'Dorset,' iii., 155, etc.

[6] Died young. Place of burial not known.

[7] Citizen and Merchant Taylor of London. Apprenticed Oct. 1661. Free Jan. 1668-9. Died unmarried. Buried 9 Dec. 1714 at St. Bride's, London. Will dated 22 Oct. 1714; proved 13 Dec. following in P.C.C.

[8] She appears to have been the only child of this large family who married (see note 22), and to have been the survivor of them all. She died 6 June 1732, and was buried (with her parents) at St. Bride's, Fleet Street. See her marriage to John White in the last entry of these Memoranda. Her will, as "of Mortlake, Surrey, widow," dated 16 Aug. 1731; proved 31 July 1732 in P.C.C.

[9] Died an infant. Buried 26 Sept. 1652 at St. Bride's, London.

[10] Died young. Buried 13 June 1661 at St. Bride's, London.

[11] In 'Royal Descents; a Genealogical List of the several Persons entitled to Quarter the Arms of the Royal Houses of England,' by (an accurate genealogist) C. E. Long, 1845, 4to, at page 10 occurs this passage: "Descendants of Henry Hastings of Newington Butts, viz., descendants, if any, of Thomas Alway (who was living 1691), son of John Alway, by Anne, dau. and heir of the said Henry Hastings." The date 1691 is probably a mistake for 1688, the first being the date of the probate, while the last (24 May 1688) is the date of the making of the will (mentioned in note 4 above) of Katharine Hastings, widow, the step-grandmother of this Thomas Ayleway, who bequeaths him a legacy therein. He is never heard of after this date, nor any his issue, and probably died s.p. before 1714, the date of his brother Henry's will.

THE LAST DAYS OF HARINGTON AT KELSTON.*

The Demolition of their stately Mansion.

In 1764 Cæsar Hawkins, Esq., having fully completed his purchase of Kelston Manor, commenced the demolition of the house on which the first Haringtons of Kelston had lavished an enormous sum. The far-reaching terraces, discernible to this day, and the position of the outbuildings which remain, shew that this mansion must have covered a very large area. Its destruction was effected before the Harington who had been compelled to sell his property was dead. He retired to Bath and survived his house at Kelston. This remarkable edifice, built, as we are told, from the designs of James Barrozzi of Vignola, was razed to the ground; no one preserving any memento of it, either by paint or pencil. No interest in things ancient or remarkable seems to have affected the mind or stayed the hand of the destroyer. Kelston House fell, and none can shew us even a rough sketch or outline of what it was. A rude tradition of its grandeur alone remains now (1885) among the oldest villagers, who remember to have heard their grandsires speak of it, themselves being now full eighty years of age. To the enquiry how it came to be taken down without any memorial being retained of it, I can only answer it was done in the Georgian Era. Should it be asked why it was taken down at all, the only intelligible reason I can assign for its demolition is on account of its vast size or probably defective state of repair. The mansion was no doubt too large for a single estate to maintain. If its decorations were faded or crumbled with decay, it would have been costly to renew them. It was probably unsuitable also in respect to its interior arrangements for any ordinary tenant. It is impossible to conceive that a fabric completed no further back than 1580, and built with scrupulous care throughout (its erection extended over a period of fifteen years), could require that its main structures should be removed. In fact we know they did not so require from seeing with our own eyes other work of the same period and done by the same hands attempted to be broken up. Actual experience of similar buildings at Kelston confirms the truth of the village tradition, which asserts that the solidity of the walls of Kelston House was so great in 1764-5, that they had to be broken and torn up bit by bit with iron tools. We know that October 1765 did not find the destruction wholly accomplished. This may have been caused by the severe labour it entailed on the destroyers to do their work; and another reason for its lingering dissolution may have been a desire to utilize the excellent materials of it a second time. One of the stables attached to the house is still standing, and the wall which secured the Harington fruit-garden remains to this day erect. It is a pattern for modern masons to copy. Now, if we can speak thus of a stable and garden wall, what may we not think of the structural solidity of the mansion itself.

But next we come to a most interesting fact. Out of this wreck of all things, one stone, most curiously carved, now remains; and more than that, is going altogether to escape oblivion. For the writer has had this lone survivor of the Harington House photographed, and can give his readers a sight of it through the further process of lithography (see Plate). And he has good grounds for supposing that all who look upon it are indebted for their sight of this unique specimen of Barozzi's work in Somersetshire to the casual visit of an antiquarian rambler in the neighbourhood of Bath in 1765, Dr. Pocock. This antiquary fortunately paid Kelston a visit whilst its "Great House" was suffering from "axes and hammers," and attracted by the ornamentation of this stone, we believe that he must have solicited its preservation. That its preservation is due to Dr. Pocock seems a quite fair inference; because his notes taken that day are extant in the British Museum, making pointed reference to this sculpture. This stone alone remains (1885) of the edifice he visited. Surely we are warranted in connecting its preservation with the antiquary's visit.

A Brief Description of the Mansion at Kelston built by James Barozzi of Vignola for the Haringtons.

Taken from Dr. Pocock's Tour MS. (Additional MSS., Brit. Mus., No. 14260, f. 213).

Bath, 1764. "Another day I went on the south of the river (Avon) and crossed two miles from the town to the other side. A mile and a half from this is Kelston (Kilhe-Ton, Wood Town). Kelston was the estate of John Harrington, who built a noble single house here of the design of Barozzi of Vignola. There is a handsome Doric door-case to it, with niches in front, divided by Ionic pillars; and at the back of the house is a door-case, if I mistake not, with an Ionic entablature, and a broken pediment with a vase in the middle, which is not judged to be in good taste, but it is in other respects a fine door-case.

"There are two grand chimney-pieces—one in the Corinthian order, the other a bad execution of a kind of Tuscan, with a bas-relief of a king and people about him, and a tower as with men on it, under it [the bas-relief] is this inscription: Psalme CV.

"The windows are the large kind divided into several compartments. There is a grand room both below and above in which are these chimney-pieces; within them are two smaller rooms divided in two by cage-work, to which are closets in the [? one] tower. The staircase is in the other tower, the floors of which are of solid timber. The room up two pair of stairs seems to have been designed for a gallery; so that the sleeping rooms seem to have been in the tower. The house is all hewn stone, but of the tower only the coigns and window frames. A wing joined on each side to it of stables and kitchen offices. They are pulling all down to build a house in a very fine situation on the hill over it.* Mr. Hawkins, the surgeon,† having bought the estate."

A Comment on the Sculptured Stone by the Writer.

The subject of the carved stone would seem to be "The exaltation of Joseph," as indicated by the reference given beneath the feet of the chief figures ("Psalme CV."). We take this as the first meaning and retrospective interpretation, so to say, of the stone and of the grouping to be found upon it. As to the dress and surroundings being those of the sculptor's own day, though referring to subjects of the Old Testament, the sculptor only follows medieval custom in this.

But, besides the first and serious meaning of the sculpture (the subject of which was probably furnished by Sir John Harington himself), we think we see a second intention in the treatment, one that is spiced with Sir John's own genius, which loved to point religious topics with incisive wit. (Compare his zeal for the restoration of Bath Abbey with the joke he played off on Bishop Montague to stimulate the sacred work.)

The exalted figure, circled with a ruff, poised on slender legs, may serve for Joseph, of whose physical characteristics no one knows much; but the princely figure, we think, describes no less our pedantic King James I. The suppliants (one with a bag in his hand) may be Joseph's brethren, come to buy corn of the quondam prisoner, and escorted by attendants to his kingly presence. But they probably express Harington's own experience of the best method of approaching princes in his day. That kneeling figure seems to portray Sir John himself or his eldest son, and to say, if you want a grant of manors confirmed, accompany your suit with a bag. The Haringtons received a grant of confirmation from King James, which made their manor freehold, and irrevertible to the crown. King James must have stood well in Harington's estimation after that. We cannot tell now what strings were pulled to gain that grant; but it is conceivable that Harington knew that they were purse strings. A tower may be seen to the left, with heads protruding from the top, as of prisoners desiring to escape. Now the imprisonment

* Either this represents a mere rumour prevalent at the time (1764), or else it is an error for "Hill over the River;" because the Hawkins mansion does not stand on the hill above the old site, nor was it ever commenced there.

† Afterwards Sir Cæsar Hawkins, Bart.

of Joseph was an important incident in his career; nor does the parallel fail in the life of King James. He had known strictures placed upon his freedom (the Raid of Ruthven in particular in 1581-2), and such incidents within the memory of Sir John Harington of Kelston were possibly utilised upon this stone. Let us not forget that Joseph was aided by miraculous wisdom in his transition from a prison to the right hand of Power. May we also apply the language of Psalm CV. to King James. When the Scottish nobles "let him go free," then he "also came" into England and "taught his senators wisdom."*

I shall be much obliged to any one who can tell me what relationship existed between James Inglish, or Inglis, of Edinburgh, who is buried in Bunhill Fields, London, said there to be 45 years old at the time of his death, and the Inglish family given in the 'London Visitation of 1633.' The arms on the tombstone of the Inglishes are: Azure, a lion saliant gardant argent, three mullets or.

Also can any one kindly tell me what relation Robert Hanson of Normanton, mentioned at p. 307, whose daughter Mary married Sir Thomas Grey Cullum, Bart., was to Capt. Ralph Hanson, who married Martha, dau. of Metcalf Procter of Thorpe-on-the-Hill? Ralph Hanson's father was Oswald Hanson of Wakefield, grandson of William Hanson of Stanley, by Katherine, dau. of Gervase Hatfield of Hatfield. Capt. Ralph Hanson, I believe, married in Jamaica 1773, as I have not been able to find any record of his marriage in England. Will any one kindly inform me to whom I ought to apply, and if there are any registers in Jamaica temp. 1773? J. D. H.

* This curious and deeply interesting stone was rescued from outdoor exposure and further injury than it had already sustained by the late Lieut.-Col. Inigo Jones, who, upon his coming to reside at Kelston in 1857-8, had it placed under cover; and, through the courtesy of a member of the family since his decease, the photograph, from which the illustration (see Plate) is derived, was allowed to be taken. The stone itself is freestone and native to the district, measures four feet square and six inches thick.

TOWNSEND—NANKIVELL (Vol. IV., New Series, page 128; Vol. I., Second Series, page 273).—Through the kindness of Mr. R. Hovenden of Croydon, I have the date of burial at Croydon of Mrs. Joyce Townsend as 9 June 1783, and her age 36; and the Sexton's book adds "from London." The date of death of Mrs. Joseph Townsend née Joyce Nankivell, as given by me at the first reference, is utterly incorrect.

THE LAST DAYS OF HARINGTON AT KELSTON.*

(Concluded from p. 318.)

A Memoir or Brief Biographical Notice of Dr. Henry Harington, M.D.

But it is time to return from the contemplation of the wreck of Kelston House to the last heir born in it, and close my Harington History and Memoranda of Kelston with his memoir.

Dr. Henry Harington, whose memory still lingers in Bath as of one long known there and very highly esteemed, comes under our notice from the first accompanied by sad reflections. If we grieve over the demolition of the stately mansion at Kelston, what must be our regret and sympathy for the last Harington born within its walls, baptized in the old parish church, and associated with all the ancestral surroundings. It seems hard that the only surviving son of his parents—the only child born to them after they themselves had entered on the family estate—should never himself enjoy the property, but, upon his coming of age, should find himself without power of intervention in the family arrangements, because his elder brother had already joined his father in barring the entail. John, the first son of Henry Harington, Esq., by Mary his wife, was about ten years older than the subject of our memoir, and had been born before his parents came to reside at Kelston. He joined in all the necessary legal steps for giving his father a title to Kelston in fee simple, and enabling him to sell the estate whenever he deemed fit. But before that day arrived (1759) he was himself no more. His name is missing from all the legal proceedings for sale to Cæsar Hawkins, Esq. A note is found in some family memoranda that this John died childless in 1751, but no word is added more. So we are left to the chapter of accidents for ever discovering where so important a factor in Harington history met his death. Not born at Kelston; he did not die at Kelston; nor does the Register of Kelston record his burial.

In 1759, Henry, the younger, had the pain of witnessing the sale of the last Harington estate, and long before that he must have well known the straitened circumstances of his father. The encumbrances on Kelston, chiefly caused by the legacies and dowers payable out of it, had amounted to a total of £8000 secured by mortgage to one Joseph Nicholls of "the Six Clerks' Office." The interest was at four per cent., and considering that the greater portion of the manor was out on leases for lives, paying very moderate yearly rents, and small chief rents and heriots "when they should happen," it was quite obvious, in 1759, that Henry, the elder, could no longer support his county position. On resolving therefore to sell, he appears to have been aided in carrying out the necessary transactions for sale and conveyance to Hawkins (the purchaser) by Child's London Bank. Agatha Child, widow of the late Samuel Child, Banker, is made a party in several deeds. During this period of family decadence, Henry, the younger, the subject of our memoir, had been pursuing his school and collegiate studies; it is said with a view of taking Holy Orders, which he afterwards changed for the profession of medicine. Born in 1727, he became a private pupil of Dr. Geo. Fothergill, father of a Vicar of Twerton-on-Avon of that name, and brother, as we believe, of Dr. Fothergill, Provost of Queen's College, Oxford. He would be drawn to enter "Queen's" by these and his family associations (i.e. through the Hudlestons and his uncle William Harington); he matriculated at that college in December 1745; and graduated in Arts, B.A. 1749, M.A. 1752 (June).

In December 1752 (his brother John being now dead, and himself qualified to practice in medicine, though he had not yet taken his professional degrees at Oxford) he married and settled at Wells. His wife was Martha, daughter of Edward Musgrave of Oxford, and tradition says, what her portrait confirms, that she was a lady famed for her beauty. This marriage took place at Swyncombe near Henley-on-Thames.

The reason for settling at Wells may be found in the attraction of having relatives already established there. Two Hudlestons were successive Rectors of St.

Cuthbert's Church in that cathedral city. Henry Harington's elder children were born at Wells; but in 1757 his uncle Edward Harington, who had long held an eminent position as a Doctor of Physic in Bath, died, and this, no doubt, induced the nephew to remove to the wider sphere accorded him for practice in Bath. In 1762 he took the degrees of M.B. and M.D. at Oxford by accumulation upon the 2nd day of July. He was now fairly launched upon his life's career, and took up a well-received position in the neighbourhood of his ancestral property, from which he continued to derive some small income of reserved rent, but this he subsequently sold to the Hawkinses for a life annuity.

At the time when Dr. Henry Harington entered upon his medical practice in Bath, the city of hot springs was approaching the zenith of its fame as a place of fashionable resort during winter. With Dr. Edward Harington's introduction he would readily succeed to a highly remunerative connection among the best families and invalid visitors of Bath. Dr. Henry Harington was an extremely genial man, full of wit, and passionately fond of music. On arriving at Bath he threw himself heart and soul into the life of the city, and identified himself with all the fashionable pursuits there; for which he was well adapted by genius and education. His father too was living in Bath up to 1769, when he died in good old age. So, by settling in Bath, the Doctor would seem to have surrounded himself with all that could make his life happy and prosperous. He served the civic offices, promoted the charities and recreations of the city. He composed addresses for the the Corporation on their special occasions, wrote prologues for the theatres, founded the Harmonic Society, frequented the Catch Club, attended the performance of sacred music both of his own and others in the Abbey Church, wrote inscriptions for the public edifices, and gave a good toast when he was called on to propose one.* In short, it is easy to see that he filled a very useful and prominent position, standing out as a central figure in Bath when she was at her gayest and grandest.

Although a man of classical education and decided literary tastes, he never distinguished himself by any great literary work. He wrote, however, several fugitive pieces and bon mots, of which the following has not been published before, as we believe:

"THE 3 ENGLISH PHILOSOPHERS."

Three Wondrous sages 'midst these Eras born,
Revered for Knowledge, Albion's Isle adorn.
One called forth Science as she slumbering lay,
And led the Dawn of intellectual Day.
The next thro' life immers'd in Thought profound,
Toiling for Truth, search'd Nature's ample round.
The third reviewed with new enlightened soul,
Improved all past and perfected the whole.
(Una tribus Gratia Est.)

To Wm. Watson with Dr. Harington's Compliments.

He was not the editor of the 'Nugæ Antiquæ of Harington,' second edition, 1778-9 (let us place that on record once for all). Writers in attributing that office to him have confounded him with Dr. Henry Harington of Norwich, his son, who was a Doctor of Divinity and not of Physic. The 'Nugæ' might well have been compounded originally by the Doctor of Medicine, for it is a mixture of everything under the sun; composed of many valuable yet some far from valuable ingredients. Would that the original documents, from which the first edition (1769) was printed, were still forthcoming. We might then be able to sift out the fictions from the facts (there are many fancies in it, though no doubt facts prevail), and we might get some of the dates verified, and the various John Haringtons identified.

* A specimen of one of Dr. Harington's Toasts:

Here's to Rex, Lex, and Pontifex!
A toast no loyal heart rejects:
The King in safety all protects,
The Church to future bliss directs.
May knaves who plot the state to vex
Find Law provide for all their necks!

Whilst the Doctor of Divinity perpetuated the 'Nugæ' by a new edition, and added to the original, the Doctor of Medicine became the author of a peculiar treatise in support of the Doctrine of the Holy Trinity, by reference to the properties of an equilateral triangle, and to the unity of sound in the combinations of the triple cord. The father and son seem to have crossed each other's lines of work. Nor have we yet done with incongruities; for the Doctor of Medicine owes his highest fame and most lasting reputation to his talent for music! In this science he was a man of great culture, and endowed with much power, both as a composer and connoisseur. Mr. Luard, in the 'Biographie Universelle,' declares some of the Doctor's compositions to be not inferior to Handel. Few of us, I fear, are competent to enter this field of criticism, and say yes or no to the assertion. But we believe that the anthem written by Dr. Harington on the most solemn of all subjects, the solitude in death of our Lord Jesus Christ, and embodying the words, "Now there was darkness over all the land, and about the ninth hour Jesus cried, Eloi, Eloi, lama sabachthani," was a grand composition. It is commemorated on the author's monumental tablet in Bath Abbey, and given in full in Dr. Marshall's 'Collections for Cathedral and Collegiate Churches,' No. 482. It has been sung at Exeter and perhaps in other Cathedrals during the present century. A companion piece to this was "Our Saviour's Prayer in the Garden of Gethsemane." Besides anthems of many parts for all voices, he wrote canons, and some psalm tunes which might soften the asperities of Tait and Brady; and besides sacred pieces he composed much of a lighter sort, duets, glees, and catches. Three volumes of his musical works were collected and published by his daughter Isabella, the wife of Archdeacon (Josiah) Thomas. I have seen one of them. Perhaps the most popular, even to the present day, of all his pieces is the well-known round "How sweet is the Pleasure, how great the Delight," etc. An important notice of Dr. Harington as a musician occurs in the 'Bath and Bristol Magazine,' 1834, vol. iii., pp. 348–356.

With this memoir my notes (which have been long continued) on the Haringtons of Kelston are brought to a close, for the simple reason that with Dr. Henry Harington, M.D., their territorial connection with Kelston ceases, and passes beyond the scope of Kelston Memoranda. A few words more in parting, and I shall have done and said all that I can about those whose memories were fast decaying and recollections fading out when I came to Kelston in 1858. Their family history (closely scanned) has contrasted favourably with that of many, in shewing no gross extravagances nor vicious follies. Their fortunes came to an end as does the human body by causes of natural decay. Their wills and dealings with property shew great thoughtfulness and kindliness. Indeed, their liberality towards the people and parishes with which they were connected often seemed to err on the side of too great generosity in proportion to their means. Dr. Henry Harington, the last of his race with whom my pen is concerned,* was no exception to this; he was of mild temper and graceful manners, performing many kindnesses to the poor gratuitously, and even answering their appeals to him for advice by letter when they could not travel to see and consult him. In his love of music, poetry, and wit, and in fondness of society, and in his taste for mechanism, he reminds us more of his ancestor, the Knight of Queen Elizabeth's time, than any other member of the family. Cradled amid the difficulties of decaying fortune, he died in good circumstances, regretted and beloved by all who knew him, because he was cultured, genial, and sympathetic in word and deed. He passed to his rest, in Northumberland Buildings (No. 4), Bath, on Monday the 15th January 1816, at the very advanced aged of 89 years. His resting-place-in-hope is Kelston churchyard, and the site of his grave a few paces to the north side of the chancel door.

* No doubt the many friends of Edward Charles Harington, Canon and Chancellor of Exeter Cathedral and its noble benefactor, will not allow his life to fade from recollection for want of a memoir written by some one of them who knew him best and loved him most.

HANSON. (Vide pp. 307, 318.)

I enclose an extract from Roby's 'Parish of St. James's, Jamaica,' containing such references as I could find there, respecting the family of Hanson, and hope it may be of some use to J. D. H.

The Jamaica Parish Registers after 1773 have been fairly well kept, but before the year 1711 few exist that are perfect, and all before that date, of the Parish of St. James's are missing, but St. Andrew's has them from before 1705.

Application for searches or official copies of records, wills, etc., should, I believe, be made to the Registrar of the Supreme Court (T. Hendrick).

B. F. SCARLETT.

A descendant, John Hanson, represented St. Catherine's in 1821. The property of "Saltponds" was bought in 1704 from the heirs of Sir Thos. Modyford, and in 1837 still belonged to the descendants of John Hanson the elder.

WILLOUGHBY.—Wanted, to learn the ancestry of Col. William Willoughby of Kent, who commanded a regiment in the Civil War 1644, and in 1648-9 was appointed Master Attendant for Portsmouth and Commissioner of the Royal Navy. He was born about 1588, and died in 1651. His wife's name was Elizabeth. His son Francis Willoughby went to New England in 1638, returned in 1651, in 1652 succeeded his father as Commissioner of the Navy, in 1658 was M.P. for Portsmouth, in 1662 returned to America with his third wife, Margaret (Locke), widow of Daniel Taylor, was Deputy Governor of Massachusetts from 1665 till his death in 1671. The arms on the mural tablet of Col. William Willoughby at Portsmouth are, Or, fretty azure. Crest: A lion's head couped at the shoulders guardant or, between two wings expanded gold fretty azure; mantled gules, doubled argent. They are the same arms as those given in Burke's 'General Armory' (ed. 1878) to Sir Francis Willoughby, knighted in Ireland in 1610. This Sir Francis was from Beauchamp's Court, of the Warwickshire branch of the Kent family. His son Deputy Governor Francis Willoughby used the same arms upon his seal. Among the descendants of the Deputy Governor very distinct family traditions have come down with some fine needlework said to have been wrought by Queen Elizabeth when Princess in captivity, given by her to her Maid of Honour, a Willoughby, and by the latter given to Lord Francis Willoughby, who was a relative of Queen Elizabeth. It is a historical fact that Margaret Willoughby, sister of Sir Francis Willoughby of Wollaton, was assigned in 1555 to the household of Princess Elizabeth, with whom she remained till her marriage in 1558 to Sir Matthew Arundel. The Princess Elizabeth was second-cousin once removed to Sir Francis and Margaret Willoughby. Two daughters of this Sir Francis Willoughby of Wollaton married two sons of Thomas Willoughby, Sheriff of Kent in 1590, of the de Eresby family. The arms of the early Willoughbys de Eresby were, Or, fretty azure; the earliest crest, given them by Glover the Somerset Herald, temp. Elizabeth, is a bat or demi-bat volant, the wings fretty. This crest was used on the monument of Peregrine Bertie, Lord Willoughby de Eresby, son of Catharine Willoughby, Duchess of Suffolk, and Lord Richard Bertie, who took his mother's name and title, and signed himself "P. Willagby." It is described as "a bat displayed; mantled gules, doubled argent." A manuscript in the Library of Canterbury gives the arms of Peregrine Bertie, Lord Willoughby, as borne in 1590. The crest is a full round, fierce head, as though of a lion, but the wings on either side are those of a bat and fretty. This crest, with a distinct lion's face, is seen in Edmondson's 'Baronagium Genealogicum,' vol. i., p. 54, as that of Robert, son of Peregrine Bertie, who became Lord Willoughly de Eresby in 1601, and Earl of Lindsey in 1627. He descended from Sir Christopher Willoughby, who was ancestor of the branch of the Willoughby de Eresby family, before mentioned, which intermarried with the Wollaton Willoughbys. The bat's face of the early Willoughbys had been changed to that of a lion, while the bat's wings had been retained. These facts would seem to shew that Col. William Willoughby descended from the Kent Willoughbys de Eresby. Any information connecting him with that family, or in any way shewing his origin, or that of his wife Elizabeth, will be received with thanks by Mrs. Edward Elbridge Salisbury, New Haven, Connecticut, United States.

NOTES ON HARVEY INSCRIPTIONS.

[1] The Harvey Chapel is a plain rectangular building of brick with high pitched tile roof, on the north side of Hempstead Church, adjoining and communicating with the chancel, and lighted by three large windows; and appears to have been erected about 1655 by Eliab Harvey, the merchant of London, together with the "outer" vault beneath, as a place of sepulture for his family. It is externally from north to south about 19 ft. 10 in. and from east to west 28 ft. 9 in., and divided by a wall into two apartments, one of which, on the east, was formerly used as a school, but now as a vestry room, and the western is the mortuary chapel proper. This latter, until lately enclosed with a chestnut screen and kept under lock and key, is, with a portion extending into the chancel, about 21 ft. 6 in. by 10 ft. 9 in., having the floor 2 ft. above that of the nave. The "outer" and original vault, which was formerly entered by stairs from the recess (8 ft. by 6 ft.) between Dr. and Capt. Edw. Harvey's monuments, but now, from outside of the church, is 24 ft. 6 in. by 17 ft., and 7 ft. 4 in. high; the "inner" one, built (as appears by an inscription cut in stone over the entrance) by Eliab Harvey of Claybury, in 1766, being 17 ft. 10 in. by 15 ft. 6 in., of similar height and arched with brick. They contain in all fifty-one coffins (including Dr. Harvey's, removed in 1883 to the sarcophagus in chapel above), fourteen of which are of lead, and mostly very curious, resembling Egyptian mummy cases in shape, and having raised letters, and masks of the features thereon. That of Eliz. Harvey, 1696, and all the subsequent coffins were of lead enclosed in wood, and are very similar to those of the present day.

"Dorothy Dicer alias Harvey, aged about 13 years and a widow," and the marriage took place at St. Martin Outwich, London, 1 Sept. following; bur. 10 July 1711. Monument in Harvey Chapel states in error that she married 2 Sept., and died aged 48. This and note 10 settle the vexed question as to her parentage, age, and marriage.

By his death without male issue surviving this branch of the Harvey Family is believed to have become extinct in that line.

[52] Placed out of its proper order in the list, as there is neither inscription on the coffin nor entry of the burial in the Register, and the date has not been ascertained. Mon. in Harvey Chapel, however, records his burial here as son (third and youngest) of Wm. and Dorothy of Chigwell. He was b. c. 1691, and ob. probably young and before 1742.

DUGDALE MEMORANDA.* (See page 346.)

Rev. James Dugdale, S.P.P., was installed Sub-Dean of Wells 12 Sept. 1660. In Walker's 'Sufferings of the Clergy,' fol. 1714, page 73, he is described as Prebendary of West Harptree, Rector of Shepton Beauchamp, and Vicar of Evercreech, all in the Diocese of Bath and Wells. A full account is also given of all his sufferings during the Civil Wars, as related "by his daughter." There is also much about him in a MS. History of the Parish of Evercreech, compiled by a Vicar of the parish, Rev. John Jenkins, who died 1824, which is "Dedicated to Samuel Rodbard, Esq., 1811." I was permitted to examine this many years ago. He married Grace, the daughter of James Perceval of Weston in Gordano, whose will was proved 31 Aug. 1594. He leaves to Grace, one of his many daughters, £100.

Sandbach.—Information is desired concerning the ancestry and connections of Francis Sandbach of the Inner Temple, Lord of the Manor of Orkesden, co. Kent. He is mentioned in Hasted's 'Kent,' vol. i., p. 308. He and his mother, Joane or Johane Sandbach, occur also in Chancery Proceedings, temp. Q. Elizabeth. Mr. Grazebrook's 'Heraldry of Worcestershire' contains an interesting article on the Sambaches of Broadway, Child's Wickham, and Snowshill in the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries. Amongst their alliances were Canning, Purefoy, Hobilday, and Kempston. In Collins's 'Peerage' (vol. ix., p. 7, ed. 1812) Sir William Sambach is said to have been Attorney-General of Ireland in the seventeenth century. Further information will be gratefully received.

[64] This appears to have been the sixth daughter, the seventh and youngest being Mary, mar. to Geo. Fane, Esq.

[65] This was executed by G. Maile and Son of Euston Road, London, at the expense of the London College of Physicians, and erected by permission of the family in the centre of the Harvey Chapel (being placed due north and south) for the reception of Dr. Harvey's remains, which were removed with due solemnity from the vault below and placed therein on St. Luke's Day, 18 Oct. 1883, in the presence of the representatives of the family and of the College. It is massive but plain, and measures at base about 8 feet 5$\frac{1}{4}$ inches long by 4 feet wide and 3 feet 8 inches high.

[66] The Register dates from 1664, but the earliest burial entry therein is dated 9 April 1665.

THE FIRST PART OF A NEW AND ENLARGED EDITION OF

Hasted's History of the County of Kent,

BEING A HISTORY OF

The Hundred of Blackheath,

The most important Division of the County, comprising the Kentish Suburbs of London, and forming a complete Work in itself.

So long ago as the year 1836, the late Reverend Thomas Streatfeild, of Charts Edge, issued a Circular announcing his intention of publishing a History of Kent, to the accumulation of materials for which he, for nearly half a century, devoted the energies of his life. Mr. Streatfeild secured the co-operation in his task of his friend the late Reverend Lambert B. Larking, Vicar of Ryarsh, who was himself a well-known collector of information connected with the County of Kent. The two friends pursued, with untiring energy, the task they had undertaken, and their joint investigations resulted in the acquisition of a vast amount of information which they fondly hoped to embody in their History, and submit to the public. The death, however, of Mr. Streatfeild in 1848, and of Mr. Larking in 1868, prevented the realisation of their hopes, and at the latter date their collections fell into the hands of Mr. John Wingfield Larking, of The Firs, Lee, who determined to perpetuate the memory of his brother, and of his friend Mr. Streatfeild, by utilising the materials which they had gathered together, and giving to the County of Kent the result of their labours. Several years, however, elapsed before he succeeded in finding a competent Editor for the contemplated Work. Fortunately, he eventually obtained the services of Dr. Henry Holman Drake, who undertook the onerous duty; and after a lengthened period, and the expenditure of editorial labour which can only be appreciated by the initiated, Mr. Larking is able to present to the gentlemen of Kent the History of the Blackheath Hundred of the County as a Work complete in itself, but designed to constitute a part of the History of the entire County.
